2. Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

Deciding the right way ahead can be very difficult and stressful - especially for your generation . Why ? Because there have never been so many choices to make before . Think back 300 years when the world has no choices . If you had been born in 1700, very few of you have had any education . At 16 , nearly all of you would have been hard at work at home or on the land . You would probably have had very few choices : your lives would simply have followed your parents' .
What if you had been born in 1900 instead ? Generally speaking , you would have had more choices and chances by then . You would have been able to travel -though only by train : cars were for the rich and planes were for the very brave . Several years of school would have given you more possibilities - although you would probably have left at 13 . There would have been more goods to buy in the shops , but not a TV or a computer : these and many other things did not exit . Life would have been limited in another way ,too : there would have been far fewer career opportunities . Could you have become a TV technician or a computer programmer ? No, because these and thousands other jobs had not been invented . And so back to today . Yes. It's harder to choose than ever before , but it's wonderful that you have the chance . So think and choose responsibly . You have one life : use it well .
